Highlights

1988-1989

Around the world in (one hundred) eighty days - this has been a special year for international studies at R.H.S.M. We began with a keen interest in Japan and Korea, focusing our attention on the Olympics. Missy Marlowe, our Olympic gymnast from the Upper School, shared her experience with our students when she returned. Each month we moved on to a new area of the world, enriching our studies with displays of objects from that geographical region (often obtained by our parent travelers). Guest speakers personalized our program, as did performers from Bolivia and India. We posed "questions of the day" for all to consider, and challenged our knowledge by participating in the National Geographic Geography Bee. The Christmas program, "It's a Small World", provided an opportunity to perform songs and dances from many parts of the world. And when the Year of the Dragon came to an end, we celebrated Chinese New Year in chapel, welcoming in the Year of the Snake.

While we were broadening our world view, other exciting things were happening here at school. The Home and School Association helped make it possible to place a computer in every classroom. The computer lab moved to larger quarters and is fully utilized. A successful auction allowed us to complete our library remodeling program - the students love the new amphitheater - and volunteer mothers moved us toward a computerized check-out. We enjoyed on-going student and professional art exhibits in our halls and library. Our talents were further displayed at the annual "Puttin' on the Arts" program in the spring.

It has been an active year in a literal sense. Preschoolers developed climbing skills on new playground equipment. In the fall sixth-graders could be seen jumping rope (and earning $2000 for the Heart Association). In the winter students participated in a wide variety of special sports programs, while spring brought out yo-yos across the campus. Other highlights of the year included a special Halloween party, the Book Fair, a visit from a storyteller, and a U-Tie (U. of Utah) theater presentation "Words in Motion".

Students made many field trips within Salt Lake City, as well as to the mountains and to southern Utah. They participated in computer math classes at the University of Utah and science classes at the Museum of Natural History, saw "The Nightingale" by the Children's Dance Theater, and sixth graders went to Ogden to hear Jesse Jackson. The "Winged Lions" were highly successful chess players, coming out on top in many competitions.

After experiencing last summer's successful "Space Camp" and "Renaissance" programs, we are looking forward to building "Sand Castles". Join us, and enjoy the summer!
